RRV Section Meeting

The English Channel Tunnel: From a to b Without c

When October 2, 1997

Where Rock Valley College, Technology Center, Room 117. Enter from Mulford, just north of Springbrook Rd.

Agenda

6:00 PM	Social Hour
6:30 PM	Dinner
7:30 PM	Video

Program The video program "From a to b Without c" is presented by Eurotunnel in association with the IEE Faraday Lecture Series.

The Channel Tunnel has been an extraordinary human achievement in the multi-disciplinary tasks of designing, building and commissioning the complete transport system. Along the way, it has revealed many issues and points of interest for scientists and technologists.

The daily tasks of operating the transport system now, and for the whole 60 year period of the concession, also demand a range of specialisms to optimize the services.

From the design of one of the largest trains in the world to the development of individual components in a power circuit, science and technology come together to take cross-Channel transport to the next century.

The video takes you on a journey that has been the dream of travelers and engineers for centuries. It describes some of the extraordinary technological achievements which have made this dream a reality and illustrates the wide range of disciplines that were brought together to design, build, commission, and operate what will be the busiest railway system in the world.
